

Team: Consists of two NFL players (running back, wide receiver, or tight end) on separate NFL rosters.

- Each team costs $50 to buy.
- You can buy a minimum of 1 team and a maximum of 20 teams.

User: A person who signs up for The Chosen and purchases 1 or more teams.

Rules:

- 1) The game starts on Tuesday, week 1 of the NFL season.
- 2) On that Tuesday, you select two players per team to score a touchdown.
- 3) If one or both players score a touchdown, then that team moves onto the following week.
- 4) If both players DO NOT score a touchdown, then that team is eliminated.
 - a. You may choose/change player selections at any time Tuesday and Wednesday.
 - b. Starting Thursday, you may no longer choose/change players.
- 5) Steps 1-4 are repeated until the Super Bowl.
- 6) If a player scores a touchdown for a team at any point in the season, you may no longer select that player to score FOR THAT TEAM ONLY.
 - a. You may still select that player to a touchdown for a different team.
- 7) The user with the last team remaining wins the pot!
- 8) If there are multiple teams in after the Super Bowl, then the pot is split amongst the users proportional to how many surviving teams they have.

Example:

A user paid $250 for 5 teams. It is now week 7 of the NFL season and the user has 2 teams remaining, and the user selects the following players to score a touchdown:

Team 1 = Travis Kelce or Tyreek Hill

Team 2 = Austin Eckler or Mike Evans

If Travis Kelce, Mike Evans, and Tyreek Hill score a TD that week, then both teams stay alive!

Going Forward:

- Team 1 will no longer be able to select Travis Kelce, nor Tyreek Hill for the remainder of the season, and team 2 will no longer be able to select Mike Evans for the remainder of the season. However, team 2 may still be able to pick Travis Kelce and Tyreek Hill (assuming they haven't already scored a TD for Team 2), and likewise with Mike Evans on team 1.